“A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can an evil tree bring forth good fruit.”

St Alphonsus Maria de Liguori (feast August 2) on today's Holy Gospel:

Learn, brethren, that a good father brings up good children. But, if parents be wicked, how can the children be virtuous? Fathers and mothers, be attentive to this sermon, which is of great importance to the eternal salvation of yourselves and of your children. Be attentive, young men and young women, who have not yet chosen a state of life. If you wish to marry, learn this day the obligations which you contract with regard to the education of your children; and learn also that, if you do not fulfil them, you shall bring yourselves and all your children to damnation.

A father owes two obligations to his children; he is bound to provide for their corporal wants, and to educate them in habits of virtue. Of the second I will speak.

It is certain that a child's future good or ill conduct depends on his being brought up well or ill. God gives children to parents that they may be brought up in the fear of God, and be directed in the way of eternal salvation. Children have not been given to parents as a present, which they may dispose of as they please, but as a trust, for which they must render an account to God.

He who teaches his son to live well, shall die a happy and tranquil death. And he shall save his soul by means of his children; that is, by the virtuous education which he has given them. Were fathers or mothers to lead a life of piety and continual prayer and to communicate every day, they should be damned if they neglected the care of their children.

A parent, as being the cause of the irregularities of his children, was justly punished for their crimes with greater severity than the children themselves. Great indeed is the misfortune of the child who has parents who, when they see their children engaged in dangerous friendships and in quarrels, instead of correcting and chastising them, rather take compassion on them, and say: “What can be done? They are young; they must take their course.” Oh! what wicked maxims! what a cruel education! Do you hope that when your children grow up they shall become saints? I entreat you, fathers and mothers, to remember what I now say to you; for on it depends the eternal salvation of your own souls, and of the souls of your children.

Discipline, which is the same as the religious regulation of the morals of children, implies an obligation of educating them in habits of virtue by word and example. First, by words: a good father should often assemble his children, and instil into them the holy fear of God. But, as a well instructed son is the delight of his father's soul, so an ignorant child is a source of sorrow to a father's heart; for the ignorance of his obligations as a Christian is always accompanied with a bad life.

But parents are obliged to instruct their children in the practice of virtue, not only by words, but still more by example. If you give your children bad example, how can you expect that they will lead a good life? Do you expect that your son will go frequently to confession, when you yourself approach the tribunal of penance but rarely? Though a parent should correct by words, of what use is his correction when he sets a bad example by his acts?

To bring up children in the discipline of the Lord, it is also necessary to take away from them the occasion of doing evil. “Cast out,” said Sarah to Abraham, “this bondwoman and her son.” Bad companions are the ruin of young persons. A father should remove from his house all bad books which contain pernicious maxims, or of profane love. O fathers and mothers! confess all the sins you have committed in this respect, before the day on which you shall be judged arrives.

Another obligation of parents is, to correct the faults of the family. “Bring them up in the discipline and correction of the Lord.” There are fathers and mothers who witness faults in the family, and remain silent. Through fear of displeasing their children some fathers neglect to correct them. But if you saw your son falling into a pool of water, and in danger of being drowned, would it not be savage cruelty not to snatch him by the hair and save his life? “He that spareth the rod hateth his son.” I say, “with the rod,” but not with the stick; for you must correct them like a father, and not like a galley sergeant. Dearly beloved brethren, draw from this discourse the conclusion that he who has brought up his children badly shall be severely punished; and that he who has trained them to habits of virtue shall receive a great reward.

If ye love Me,
keep My Commandments, and I will pray the Father and He shall give you another Comforter that He may bide with you forever

Noah's ark was a true figure of Mary. As in it all kinds of beasts were saved, so under the mantle of Mary all sinners, who by their vices and sensuality are like beasts, find refuge; but with this difference, that while the brutes who entered the ark remained brutes, under the mantle of Mary, the wolf becomes a lamb, the tiger a dove. One day St. Gertrude saw Mary with her mantle open, and under it many wild beasts - leopards, lions, bears. Not only did our Blessed Lady not drive them away, but she welcomed and caressed. The saint understood that these wild beasts were miserable sinners, welcomed by Mary with sweetness and love the moment they had recourse to her.
