O blessed house of Nazareth, I salute and venerate you! There will come a time when you will be visited by the great ones of the earth. When pilgrims find themselves inside your poor walls, they will never be satisfied with shedding tears of tenderness at the thought that within them, the King of Paradise passed nearly all His life.

In this house, then, the Incarnate Word lived. And how? Poor and despised by men, performing the offices of a common working-boy, and obeying Joseph and Mary. O God, how touching it is to think that in this poor house the Son of God lived as a servant! Now He goes to fetch water; then He opens of shuts the shop: now He sweeps the room; now He collects the shavings for the fire; now He labors in assisting Joseph at his trade. O wonder! to see a God sweeping! A God serving as a boy! O thought that ought to make us all burn with holy love for our Redeemer, Who has reduced Himself to such humiliations in order to gain our love!

Let us adore all these servile actions of Jesus, which were all divine. Let us adore, above all, the hidden life that Jesus Christ led in the house of Nazareth! O proud men, how can you desire to make yourselves seen and honored when you behold your God, Who spends thirty years of His life in poverty, hidden and unknown, to teach us the love of a humble and a hidden life!

It is said that Jesus advanced in grace with God and men: with God, because all His divine actions, though they did not render Him more holy or increase His merit, nevertheless, these operations of the Redeemer were all sufficient in themselves to increase His grace and merit.

He advanced also in grace with men, increasing in beauty and amiability. O, how Jesus showed Himself more and more amiable every day of His youth, showing more and more every day the claims He had upon men's love! With what delight did the holy Youth obey Mary and Joseph! With what recollection of mind did He work! With what moderation did He take His food! With what modesty did He speak! With what sweetness and affability did He converse with all! With what devotion did He pray! In a word, every action, every word, every motion of Jesus inflamed with love the hearts of all who beheld Him, and especially of Mary and of Joseph, who had the good fortune to see Him always at their side. Oh, how these holy spouses remained always intent on contemplating and admiring all the operations, the words and gestures of this Man-God!

Feast of the Holy Family
Jesus, Mary, and Joseph,
I give Thee my heart and my soul.

Jesus, Mary, and Joseph,
assist me in my last agony.

Joseph, Mary, and Joseph,
may I breathe forth my soul
in peace with Thee.

Amen.

Ursuline nuns came to Louisiana in 1727. As the territory changed hands, Spanish Sisters replaced them; in 1803, it was again a French possession. When Louisiana passed into the control of the United States, the Sisters wrote President Thomas Jefferson, asking if their property rights would be honored by the new government. He replied:

...I have received, holy Sisters, the letter you have written me wherein you express anxiety for the property vested in your institutions by the former governments of Louisiana. The principles of the Constitution and government of the United States are a sure guarantee to you that it will be preserved to you sacred and inviolate, and that your institution will be permitted to govern itself according to its own voluntary rules, without interference from the civil authority.... Be assured it will meet all the protection which my office can give it.

The Superior of a girls' boarding school in France wrote Pope Pius VII, seeking approval for a transfer so that she and some others could assist the nuns in New Orleans. As the Holy Father was Napoleon's prisoner at the time, she knew the unlikelihood of his even receiving the letter. She prayed before Mary's image: "O most Holy Virgin Mary, if you obtain for me a prompt and favorable answer, I promise to have you honored in New Orleans under the title of Our Lady of Prompt Succor." Sending her petition on March 19, 1809, Mother St. Michel received the reply and approval from the Holy Father on April 29. She commissioned a statue of the Virgin Mary holding the Infant Jesus, with Mary's flowing robes carved to give the appearance of rapid movement.

Under the title Our Lady of Prompt Succor, Mary is the principal patroness of New Orleans and of Louisiana.

Bishop Pivarunas' dispensation from the Precept of Attending Mass on Sundays and Holydays will continue as long as the pandemic is active within the state, or until further notice from His Excellency.
